

This is not your average female led YA Sci-fi/Fantasy. She is a "Chosen One", but is not the common ones you see in YA Sci-Fi/Fantasy novels of today. Through her struggle to accept her purpose to save her families' home planet of Galaseya to fight the monsters in the dark, Amber must learn to push her introverted ways aside to take on the armor of a warrior. Her growth from the beginning of the novel to the end is immense and a fantastic journey that rarely see in books today.

Ceara does not skim on details in this novel. She brings her visions to life through colorful, in-depth depictions of the planet of Galaseya and the galaxies beyond our own comprehension. She deserves a spot amongst other writers of today and her characters will stay with you after the final page. If you are looking for your next YA Sci-Fi/Fantasy read, I highly suggest you pick this one up! You won't regret it!

I would recommend this to readers who enjoy science-fiction because everything about the setting was well-explained. The planets were all really unique with how they came to be. If you like a female lead and character development, then this is your book because even if Amber does not seem like a strong protagonist compared to Celaena Sardothien from the Throne of Glass series, there were amazing character development and she is trying to work hard to become a stronger person too which is a bonus.
